

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A magnetic valve includes a collar surrounding and defining a port and a plug. The plug is movable from a first position within the port, in which the port is wholly closed by the plug, to a second position out of the port, in which the port is not wholly closed. The plug and collar are magnetically attracted such that in the first position the plug is magnetically retained within the port.